

ROYAL FLYING CORPS CAMP LIFE

Because of the distance back to Canada, the RFC personnel spent their leave and holidays with families in and around Fort Worth. Some even traveled to Dallas to check out the sights and attractions there. In many instances, the RFC guests left mementos with the families they stayed with in appreciation for their hospitality. The most notable example is a mantle clock made from an aircraft propeller.

TAKE AWAY: Americans were very hospitable to the foreign troops. People of North Texas opened up their homes, churches, and synagogues to the airmen.
